He stood for a moment in front of a vacant lot, soliloquizing, "Why, there is no No. 2309," and then awakening to the full meaning of the call over the telephone, he turned on his heels and said, "Well, the audacity of some people!"

JOHN STUHR REMEMBERED BY THE CAR REPAIRERS

Wednesday was the last day for John Stuhr as foreman of the car repairing department of the Southern Pacific machine shop plant at Ogden, and after the whistle blew last evening, the employees under Mr. Stuhr assembled at his office and formally presented him with a silver set of seventy-five pieces and a handsome gold-mounted meerschaum pipe.

The presentation came as a surprise to the resigning foreman, and for a moment tears welled up in John's eyes before he could reply to the substantial testimonial of his old-time friends and employees. Happy felicitations were exchanged, however, and the men were a unit in expressing well wishes for Mr. Stuhr's future.

Mr. Stuhr has several propositions under consideration at this time, but will take a well-deserved rest before resuming active railroad service.

T. P. Smyth will succeed Foreman Stuhr, temporarily at least, and it is understood a new foreman may come from Streeter, Ill., to fill the position permanently.

PRES. SMITH RETURNS HOME

HEAD OF THE CHURCH HAS ENJOYED HIS VACATION.

Train was Pulling Out Before Members of the Party Had Reached the Cars, but Was Stopped.

President Joseph F. Smith of the Mormon church and a party of eighteen or twenty personal friends arrived from the west on Southern Pacific passenger train No. 10 this morning and a few minutes later left for Salt Lake on delayed No. 8 from the north, which was held at Ogden fifteen minutes in order to accommodate the Smith party. Before the members of the party were all on board, however, No. 8 pulled out for the south and yardmaster Pierce jumped on board the moving train and pulled the air, stopping the train until all the members could reach the coaches.

President Smith looked in excellent health after his trip to the Hawaiian Islands, and assured Ogden friends who had assembled at the union depot to meet him that his trip on the Pacific had been thoroughly enjoyable and that his health had been benefited by the voyage, which was without unpleasant incident.

DAILY GRIND IN POLICE COURT

MORE GREEKS ARE CHARGED WITH DISTURBING PEACE.

Young Degenerate Is Arrested on Complaint Made by Several Young Ladies.

The police court grind today included but a few trifles for minor offenses and a postponed case of assault and battery between a crowd of Greek laborers.

Another case had been anticipated, that of a local degenerate who was locked up the night before charged with indecent exposure. Through fear that the fellow had respectable family connections in this vicinity, his name is withheld. He attracted the attention of several young ladies employed in an establishment on Twenty-fifth street, while standing before the window of his bedroom in a building adjoining. The girls complained to a man nearby who sought an officer and effected an arrest.

Through the intervention of unknown persons, the municipal judge was asked to dismiss the case. This he refused to do, but at last allowed the case to be temporarily continued.

George Karoghas, Gust Leakas, Gust Yefitos, Christ Yentogremos and Gust Yotogemo, Greeks, were arraigned on the charge of disturbing the peace, but owing to the absence of the prosecuting attorney and a lack of witnesses, the case was ordered continued.

K. Kaji, a Jap, was charged with unlawfully conducting an employment agency. The defendant did not appear, whereupon his bail of $10 was declared forfeited.

MRS. ELLA SKEEN-CARVER DIES OF BLOOD POISONING

Mrs. Ella J. Skeen-Carver, wife of Lewis H. Carver and daughter of Lyman Skeen, died at 4 o'clock this morning at her home, 478 Twenty-first street. A child was born to her on March 29, the little one dying soon after. Blood poisoning set in and with surprising quickness brought the second death to the family. The mother and baby will be buried in the same casket.

Mrs. Carver was born in Plain City on February 13, 1875, and was one of the most beloved women of that section. She leaves a husband, four children, the oldest 10 and youngest 3 years old, father and mother, eight brothers and six sisters.

SISTER'S TRICK

But it all Came Out Right. How a sister played a trick that brought rosy health to a coffee fiend is an interesting tale.

"I was a coffee fiend—a trembling, nervous, physical wreck, yet clinging to the poison that stole away my strength. I mocked at Postum and would have none of it.

"One day my sister substituted a cup of piping hot Postum for my morning cup of coffee but did not tell me what it was. I noticed the richness of it and remarked that the coffee must be just what I needed. I was drinking Postum for fear I might not take any more.

"She kept the secret and kept giving me Postum instead of coffee until I grew stronger, more tireless, got a better color in my sallow cheeks and a clearness to my eyes, the she told me of the health giving, nerve-strengthening life-giver she had given me in place of my morning coffee. From that time I became a disciple of Postum and no words can do justice in telling the good this cereal drink did me. I will not try to tell it, for only after having used it can one be convinced of its merits.

Ten days trial shows Postum's power to rebuild what coffee has destroyed. "There's a Reason."

BACK FROM ALASKA MINES

MRS. H. H. HENDERSON IN THE GOLD MINING REGION.

Wife of Prominent Attorney Relates a Bear Story of a Prospector's Narrow Escape From Death.

Mrs. H. H. Henderson has returned from a six months' trip during which she visited a number of out-of-the-way points of interest, including Alaska and Hawaii.

Mrs. Henderson was interviewed by the Standard this morning and gave an interesting account of her various journeys.

"I visited my mining property in Alaska," she said, "and found things to be progressing with satisfactory speed. There has been a shift of eighteen men at work on the Lucky Gulch claim all winter and the men have taken out an immense quantity of material which is now stacked in a huge dump awaiting the clean-up."

"The gold is found at some depth but is in the form of placer nuggets and coarse gold, requiring only washing after it is once brought to the surface. The men at the mine estimate that the clean-up will yield $100,000 and possibly more. This property is on Valdez creek in the Shushitna district, south of Fairbanks.

"While I was there, an incident happened which will probably be interesting to you. It is a bear story, but one that can be depended upon. Two of the men, one a little Scotsman by name of McDonald, were working a prospect near Lucky Gulch, and McDonald discovered what he took to be a caribou in the brush nearby. He pursued and shot at the animal and ran up to get a closer view when it proved to be one of the largest cinnamon bears ever seen in that neighborhood.

"The maddened animal leaped upon McDonald before he could retreat and with one swift blow of his enormous paw, tore the entire scalp from the crown of his head, rendering him unconscious. The bear then picked the unfortunate man up in his mouth and started away with him. McDonald's partner was helpless with fright for the time and ran for assistance and a gun. Meanwhile the bear was making its way over the rocks still holding its helpless victim in its jaws.

"A little mammaluke dog, belonging to McDonald, followed the animal and attacked it fiercely at the heels, causing the bear to relinquish its hold on McDonald several times while it pursued the dog for a short distance. The little mammaluke, however, persisted in its frantic efforts to save its master and finally succeeded, the bear dropping the unconscious man from its mouth and shuffling off into the brush.

"The partner arrived soon after with a weapon and found McDonald half dead. With no surgeon within a radius of many miles, there was no time to think of other methods of saving his life than that of replacing the torn scalp and binding it tightly in place with bandages. McDonald soon regained consciousness and was able to walk back to camp, where he was given such crude medical attention as the scanty supply of remedies in the camp afforded, and he finally recovered. A physician who examined McDonald's head some time after his return to civilization stated that no surgeon's treatment could have been more successful than that accorded McDonald by his inexperienced partner. The little dog is now looked upon as the district's mascot and all the wealth of a Klondike could not induce the owners to part with him.

"I visited the Hawaiian Islands and found much to interest me there, including the great pleasure which I ascended to a considerable height. We did not reach the top on account of the extreme heat of the rocks. The view was grand. I went over the Canadian Pacific railway to New York, where I attended to matters of business before returning home."

INCUBATOR CHICKENS

The Petaluma Incubator Company's Exhibit at the California Poultry Show is regarded by visitors as the leading attraction. A 504-egg Petaluma Incubator was hauled from a Petaluma chicken ranch five miles to town, held over one night, and at 1 o'clock in the morning was hauled two miles further to Haystack Landing, conveyed to San Francisco by steamer "Gold," many chickens hatching on the way, thence transferred to the Ferry Postoffice Building, where the show is being held, and hatched under these circumstances 90 per cent. The Petaluma Incubator is a first-class machine; the factory is of 27 years' standing, the oldest in the United States, employs more men, and is father of the great poultry industry not only of Petaluma, but of the Pacific Coast.

THE PORTLAND EXPOSITION AWARDS THE INCUBATOR PRIZE.

Incubator manufacturers have been keeping a watchful eye on the Portland Exposition as the time approached for awarding the prizes. The exposition is now closed and the expected has happened. The Petaluma walked off with the gold medal.

This really occasioned very little surprise. The Petaluma is regarded not only in the west Coast States, but all over the country, as an incubator of the first rank. And the company maintained an exhibit at Portland that was daily admired by thousands of visitors. It was so attractive and complete that had the matter been left to visitors on general appearances, there would never have been any question as to who should have had first honors. Of course, the judges had to go into other matters and consider the real merits of the machines, both incubators and brooders, and the Petaluma won out.

The Petaluma, by the way, has acquired the habit of winning gold medals. It did it at the World's Fair at Chicago, at the St. Louis Louisiana Purchase Exposition, and at all the fairs where they have exhibited from that on down to the Lewis & Clark Exposition.

We congratulate the Petaluma Company, and are glad to publish the award to our readers. They and the general public are not so much interested in the matter of the honor as in being informed how the different machines rank when they are put on trial together and judged by competent authority. We believe no question has been made, in this instance, of the incubator honors being worthily bestowed.—American Poultry Journal, Dec., 1905.

Havana, April 1.—A final general order issued by Major General Thomas H. Barry today brought an end to the existence of the army of pacification in Cuba, as such, and at 10 o'clock, the transports Sumner and McClellan, with the last of the American soldiers on board, left the arsenal docks for Newport News.
